

Learning from Living with Dementia

Train the Trainer course

The award-winning course, 'Learning from Living with Dementia', from DementiaTrainers and EDUCATE, is a dementia awareness training day with a big difference. Not only was it co-produced with people living with dementia, but all the key learning points on this course are taught, via embedded video clips, by people who have dementia. In choosing 'Learning from Living with Dementia' as the Best Dementia Training Initiative 2019, the National Dementia Care Awards judges described the course as 'innovative, thoughtful and inspiring'. They said it demonstrates 'that the best people to train and raise awareness in healthcare professionals about dementia are those living with it'.

Learning from Living with Dementia is appropriate as a first level of dementia training for anyone who works in a health or social care setting. It addresses all of the Dementia Awareness learning outcomes of the Dementia Training Standards Framework (Skills for Health, Skills for Care and NHS Health Education England) and inspires staff to think of practical strategies to support the people with dementia for whom they care.

The two-day Learning from Living with Dementia Train the Trainer course is appropriate for anyone who wishes to deliver dementia awareness training to health or social care staff, from experienced care staff through to professional trainers. No prior experience of delivering training is necessary; the Train the Trainer course will both familiarise participants with the Learning from Living with Dementia course and equip them with the skills and confidence necessary to lead the course themselves. Each participant on the Learning from Living with Dementia Train the Trainer course will come away with a complete set of the resources for delivering the course, including the slideshow with embedded video clips, trainer's guidelines and handouts.

The Learning from Living with Dementia Train the Trainer course is available to be commissioned to run in-house for groups of up to 12 participants and is also available as an open course led by Buz Loveday, the Director and Lead Trainer of DementiaTrainers.

Open courses are running at different locations on the following dates:

London – 13th & 14th February 2020

Leeds – 2nd & 3rd March 2020

Birmingham – 14th & 15th May 2020

The fee per person is £495.00

To secure your place on one of these courses, complete the course booking form, available from buzloveday@googlemail.com

"Learning from Living with Dementia is the most engaging, thought provoking and person centred course I have ever had the pleasure of attending."
course participant

"Participants can't help but connect and care deeply about the people they are working with after having a training day like this!"
course participant

'Learning from Living with Dementia' can also be delivered directly to your staff by DementiaTrainers